High stakes and big challenges

Improving compliance in Europe

Who should attend?

This conference is designed for in-house corporate counsel and compliance officers.

This conference will answer questions including:

- What are the most important anti-corruption steps your company can take?
- What tools and technology are most effective in European compliance and ethics efforts?
- How can you most effectively deal with regulators across Europe and beyond?
- How can you get higher value support on compliance from your outside lawyers?

High stakes and big challenges

Improving compliance in Europe

For many corporations, it's an uphill battle to provide solid compliance education, controls and response across Europe and surrounding regions. Yet the risks are increasingly high, with unforgiving regulatory enforcement actions and media attention. Like a climb to the glacial summit, global corporate compliance requires excellent preparation, the right tools and the know-how to use them, and the flexibility to adapt with changing conditions and terrain.

At this unique international conference, delegates connect with top global corporate counsel and compliance officers to exchange best practices and learn methods and tactics to improve compliance in European businesses. The one-day conference combines substantive workshops and interactive discussions to help in-house lawyers improve implementation of pan-European compliance.

Why choose this conference?

- A unique programme focused on practical methods and approaches to managing the intricacies of pan-European compliance – a complex challenge for every company.
- Hot topics tackled by leading corporate counsel and compliance officers with global companies including Philip Morris International, US Permanent Mission to the UN, ECLA, Polo Ralph Lauren, STMicroelectronics and Tyco amongst others.
- Valuable exchange and networking with your peers from Europe through best practice roundtables, interactive discussions and social time.
- A rare chance to hear the enforcement perspective first-hand, from both regulators and compliance counsel that have been through investigations.
- Breakfast clinics led by experts, excellent hand-out materials, plus lunch and cocktails – and no registration fee.
